Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

This bill provides that a person who is placed on probation for a sex offense and confined in jail as a condition of probation is not eligible to earn a reduction in the term of confinement for good behavior or community service. The Department can not estimate the increased time that sex offenders will be confined to jail. Any additional jail time will increase jail costs.

The Department provides supervision of offenders on probation whether or not the offender is in jail. The offender would be supervised at a lower risk/reduced workload level while the offender is in jail. Thus, the Department would experience a slight workload decrease for every offender remaining in jail instead of having been released for good behavior. The Department is unable to predict the annual workload decrease.
